

PwC Australia Global Mobility Services

With the rapidly changing regulatory environment and increase in flexible working arrangements, it is now more important than ever to know where your people are, what they are doing and how to manage risk, compliance and duty of care.

Managing a flexible mobile workforce

Increasing number of individuals working remotely and/or with regional/global roles

+40% of companies do not know the number of employees working remotely

Changing rules – renewed focus from tax authorities including new terminology and new tax rules

+50% of organisations now have a documented remote work policy

Business operations rapidly change – expansion overseas or acquisitions

Technology transformation – people analytics, user experience, disruptive technologies

Employees now request to work from another location – just because!
